WILD HONEY

'Such a month it's been ... a month of wild honey' sighs Anna Petrovna, in this exciting distillation by Michael Frayn of Chekhov's play 'Platonov'.

In WILD HONEY, Frayn gives us a brilliant adaptation of this early Chekhov play, which moves from the lighter comedy at the beginning, through farce, to the darker and more painful comedy of the final scenes.

And through it all, wanders our anti-hero, the appalling, wonderful, overwhelming Platonov !

This will be the first production in Harrow of WILD HONEY, which is to be performed in the brand new Travellers' Studio Theatre at Harrow Arts Centre.

PROSCENIUM are delighted to be presenting a play which is tantalising, hilariously funny and yet which has that poignancy which only Chekhov can give us. A magic evening in the theatre.
